Kommentar

This class is designed to introduce students to standard concepts, methods, and resources of (American) literary and cultural studies. We will discuss the major literary genres, with a particular focus on American narrative fiction, poetry, and drama. A reader with course material will be made available at the beginning of the semester via Stud.IP.

Requirements: credits may be obtained on the basis of regular attendance, active participation, minor reading quizzes, writing assignments, and (for BA English students) a final exam.

The required reading will be available on StudIP.

Registration: Attendance for this class is limited to 15 students. Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March is required. The class will start in the first week of the semester. For final registration, participants need to attend the first session.

The class will be taught online.

Young Adult Graphic Novels are currently exploding in both popularity and diversity, despite the fact that many people claim they are not "real" novels. In this class, we will discover and study five recently-published Young Adult graphic novels of various genres to see what makes them work and how they compare to traditional novels. We will also discuss the narrative structure, intended audience, themes, and art of each graphic novel.

Texts include:

Through the Woods by Emily Carroll (ISBN 978-0571288656)

They Called Us Enemy by George Takei, Justine Eisinger, Steven Scott, & Harmony Becker (ISBN 978-1603094504)

Laura Dean Keeps Breaking Up With Me by Mariko Tamaki & Rosemary Valero-O'Connell (ISBN 978-1626722590)

On a Sunbeam by Tillie Walden (ISBN 978-1250178138)

Spill Zone by Scott Westerfeld & Alex Puvilland (ISBN 978-1596439368)

Please order the five novels before the beginning of the semester so that you will have them at your disposal once we discuss them in class.

Registration: Attendance for this class is limited to 20 students. Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March is required. The class will start in the first week of the semester. For final registration, participants need to attend the first session of class.

The class will be taught online.

This class aims at exploring the impact of Puritanism on interactions among people of European, African, and Native American descent, paying attention to how religious concepts shaped notions of race and gender. Justifications for slavery rooted in Greco-Roman antiquity and hierarchies of color established by European philosophy and theology were integral tools for the colonization of North America. Once Plymouth Colony and Massachusetts Bay Colony had been established, life in New England was predominantly organized by the theological system of Puritanism, which classified such human hierarchies as God-ordained. Conceiving of themselves as God's chosen people entering a wilderness full of devils and darkness, Puritans sought to control their interaction with New Englanders of color and negotiate the boundaries of their religious and racial communities.

We will explore the intersections of religion, race, and gender by focusing on four historical figures and texts written by or about them: Pocahontas (Matoaka), Mary Rowlandson, Tituba, and Cotton Mather. Boston minister Cotton Mather, who popularized theological rationales for Black inferiority, proclaimed that it was the settlers' duty to proselytize Africans to save their potentially White souls from their inferior Black bodies. We will read excerpts from Mather's sermons and essays to shed light on biblical rationalizations of slavery as well as discussions about hereditary heathenism and the religious potential of people of indigenous and African descent. We will continue to focus on accounts of Pocahontas (Matoaka), who was captured, married to John Smith, and baptized in Jamestown in 1613. While she did not leave any known texts of her own, her story served to turn the Native female body into a symbol of the American continent's openness to colonial appropriation. Investigating how this myth of the welcoming, nurturing Native woman and also that of the female White captive worked to privilege Whiteness and demarcate racial boundaries, we will turn our attention to Mary Rowlandson's widely circulated 1682 account of her captivity among the Narragansetts and Wampanoags during Metacom's Rebellion. Paying particular attention to her own status as a female Puritan author and her depiction of indigenous femininity, we will explore the tensions between Puritan patriarchy and race in her text. Finally, we will analyze how the slave Tituba functioned as the embodiment of racialized religious fears in the Salem witch trials of 1692 and how she actively used these fears to create a fantastic narrative of diabolical conspiracy in her testimony.

The required reading will be available on StudIP.

Registration: Attendance for this class is limited to 20 students. Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March is required. Please note that this class will start on Tuesday, 25 May. For final registration, participants need to attend the first session.

Old myths never die. They just ride off into the sunset. Then they return. The Western has proven to have this kind of staying power in North America and beyond. It taps into a frontier myth, at least as old as the United States, that stages western expansion as a conflict between civilization and savagery. By the 1960s, this myth had lost some of its luster. Shocked by the brutality of the Vietnam war, inspired by insights of feminism and the Civil Rights Movement, a new generation of writers set out to expose the seamy underbelly of the myth by drawing attention to its racism and sexism, and its implicit endorsement of environmental degradation and war. Savagery, they argued, was just a projection fantasy of civilization. It is impossible to fight "savages" without becoming a savage yourself; and when you stare into the wilderness, it stares back at you. Westerns, however, survived this damning criticism. They thrived. Their staying power demonstrates that a myth is not falsifiable in the same way as an argument or a political platform. It retains its emotional appeal even after being debunked. More to the point, a myth can only be defeated in mythic battle, which is to say it has the potential to script its own demise and rebirth. This certainly seems to be the case in the five representative novels we will read this semester. Published since the 1960s, they return to the Western even as they question some of its basic premises. The continuity is what makes these novels post-Westerns rather than non-Westerns, or examples of alternate traditions. They remain true to the myth of the frontier by fighting it, resorting to savagery in their defense of civilized ideals.

Provisional Reading List:

Charles Portis, True Grit (1968)

James Welch, The Death of Jim Loney (1979)

Cormac McCarthy, All the Pretty Horses (1992) (Border Trilogy 1)

Patrick DeWitt, The Sisters Brothers (2011)

Attica Locke, Heaven My Home (2019) (second installment in Highway 59 series)

Since the beginning of the history of cinema, filmmakers have relied on literary works as sources for the stories they want to tell. Yet, the relationship between the two media has remained a difficult one and has been at the center of critical debates in both film and literary studies for a long time. The first part of this class will familiarize students with the key concepts of adaptation theory. Equipped with this expertise, we will read three novels and critically analyze and discuss them in comparison with their cinematic adaptations. The preliminary reading and viewing list consists of F. Scott Fitzgerald's novel The Great Gatsby (1925) and its adaptations by Jack Clayton (1974) and Baz Luhrmann (2013), Vladimir Nabokov's Lolita (1955) and its adaptations by Stanley Kubrick (1962) and Adrian Lyne (1997), and finally Ira Levin's The Stepford Wives (1972) and its film versions by Bryan Forbes (1975) and Frank Oz (2004).

Important: If you take this class as part of modules B.EP.44 or B.AS.103, you need to have successfully completed the "Introduction to Film and Media Analysis" class of the same module before. Please note that this is a mandatory prerequisite.

The aim of this workshop is to give students a chance to enhance their writing and composition skills and to practice the format of the 'Hausarbeit' (term paper) and the Take Home Exam. Using hands-on exercises, the stages of the writing process will be discussed from finding a topic to the final revisions. We will talk about the most common mistakes and how to avoid them as well as plagiarism and other writing-related topics. As this course is voluntary, students may choose to come to single sessions only, although a continuous attendance is highly recommended. Individual writing can be handed in and discussed during office hours. Please sign up on Stud.IP for details on session topics and organization. This workshop is especially recommended for students in the 'Proseminare' in literary and media studies. Yet, all other students writing term papers and Take Home Exams in North American Studies classes are also more than welcome to participate.

Please note that this tutorial will not take place on a weekly basis, but rather in block sessions. The dates for the block sessions will be announced at the beginning of the semester.

Registration: Please register on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 May 2021. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP as well.

This course is designed to give students a thorough understanding and practice in aspects of research and professional skills pertaining to the field of American Studies. Topics of this class include features of successful non-academic writing, register, and style (such as the curriculum vitae, motivation letters/statements of purpose for studying abroad, or professional e-mails), the composition of book reviews, how to give good presentations, moderate class sessions, work successfully in groups, or efficiently manage time for written and oral assignments. The idea of this class is to practice and consolidate the above-listed skills in a close-knit and in-depth atmosphere to ensure that we come up with the best possible discussions, exchanges, and peer reviews. Thus, the number of participants is strictly limited to 12.

Requirements: credits ('Prüfungsvorleistungen', 'qualifizierte Teilnahme') may be obtained on the basis of regular attendance, active participation, minor written assignments, and a short presentation. [The 'Prüfungsleistung' of the module is offered in conjunction with the other part of this module, i.e., the "Academic Writing" class in the winter semester.]

Registration: Attendance for this class is limited to 12 students. Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March 2021 is required. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP as well. The class will start in the first week of the semester. For final registration, participants need to attend the first session.

For students in the BA North American Studies degree program, this class is part of module B.AS.102. As this class on "Research and Professional Skills" is offered in the summer semester only, students should make sure to take this class now. The first part of the module was taught in the winter. In case of questions, please contact the degree coordinator, Dr. Vanessa Künnemann.

The class will be taught online until further notice.

Kommentar

Since the beginning of the history of cinema, filmmakers have relied on literary works as sources for the stories they want to tell. Yet, the relationship between the two media has remained a difficult one and has been at the center of critical debates in both film and literary studies for a long time. The first part of this class will familiarize students with the key concepts of adaptation theory. Equipped with this expertise, we will read three novels and critically analyze and discuss them in comparison with their cinematic adaptations. The preliminary reading and viewing list consists of F. Scott Fitzgerald's novel The Great Gatsby (1925) and its adaptations by Jack Clayton (1974) and Baz Luhrmann (2013), Vladimir Nabokov's Lolita (1955) and its adaptations by Stanley Kubrick (1962) and Adrian Lyne (1997), and finally Ira Levin's The Stepford Wives (1972) and its film versions by Bryan Forbes (1975) and Frank Oz (2004).

Important: If you take this class as part of modules B.EP.44 or B.AS.103, you need to have successfully completed the "Introduction to Film and Media Analysis" class of the same module before. Please note that this is a mandatory prerequisite.

Registration: Attendance for this class is limited to 20 students. Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March 2021 is required. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP as well. The class will start in the first week of the semester. For final registration, participants need to attend the first session of class.

The class will be taught online until further notice.

Kommentar In this course we will consider the genre of the biopic - films that present on screen the biographies and/or significant episodes of the lives of well-known people: artists, writers, politicians, musicians, and other public figures. We will consider the biopic as a genre of life writing, a genre that comes in many different cinematic styles and a wide range of storytelling modes. Comparing a variety of biopics available (for the most part) on Netflix, we will analyze, identify, and interpret the different aesthetic and narrative devices used to chronicle individual lives. We will ask how biopics contextualize the lives of their protagonists within the historical, political, and cultural contexts of their time. What concepts of gender, race, class, age, and sexuality are seen to constitute biographical becoming? How do the films interweave memories, experiences, testimonials, photos, news reports, historical footage, sound bites, and voiceover narration into coherent or discontinuous life stories?

Biopics to be discussed include Joan Didion: The Center Will Not Hold, Becoming (Michelle Obama), I Am Not Your Negro (James Baldwin), What Happened, Miss Simone? (Nina Simone), Miles Davis: Birth of the Cool, Julian Schnabel: A Private Portrait, Diana: In Her Own Words, Rolling Thunder Revue: A Bob Dylan Story, The Death and Life of Mrs. P. Johnson, Who Shot the Sheriff (Bob Marley), Gaga: Five Foot Two, Inside Bill's Brain: Decoding Bill Gates, Jackie (Jacqueline Kennedy). A final selection of films, also based on availability on Netflix, will be presented at the beginning of the course.

Surveillance owes its public attention to a large extent to works of literature, film, and visual art that reflect, affirm, or contest various forms, systems, and situations of observation and monitoring. In doing so, these artistic works render a sociocultural practice tangible that is highly abstract and yet has always been inherent, unavoidable as well as inevitable to escape since the beginning of the modern age - and thus not only in our contemporary age of omnipresent CCTV-cameras, digital data mining, and online exhibitionism.

In this class we will discuss how visual and media culture address surveillance, both in terms of aesthetics and politics. Based on seminal theoretical texts from the field of surveillance studies, we will not only discuss examples of what film scholar Catherine Zimmer has recently called "surveillance cinema" but also works from media artists such as the Surveillance Camera Players collective, Trevor Paglen, Harun Farocki, Hasan M. Elahi, Jill Magid, or Hito Steyerl.

Fr 12:00 - 15:00wöchentlich Von: 16.04.2021 Bis: 16.07.2021

Kommentar

The aim of this workshop is to give students a chance to enhance their writing and composition skills and to practice the format of the 'Hausarbeit' (term paper) and the Take Home Exam. Using hands-on exercises, the stages of the writing process will be discussed from finding a topic to the final revisions. We will talk about the most common mistakes and how to avoid them as well as plagiarism and other writing-related topics. As this course is voluntary, students may choose to come to single sessions only, although a continuous attendance is highly recommended. Individual writing can be handed in and discussed during office hours. Please sign up on Stud.IP for details on session topics and organization. This workshop is especially recommended for students in the 'Proseminare' in literary and media studies. Yet, all other students writing term papers and Take Home Exams in North American Studies classes are also more than welcome to participate.

Please note that this tutorial will not take place on a weekly basis, but rather in block sessions. The dates for the block sessions will be announced at the beginning of the semester.

Registration: Please register on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 May 2021. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP as well.

Please note that the class will be taught online until further notice.

Kommentar

This lecture course is intended to familiarize students with some of the dominant trends in American poetry and fiction from the end of World War II to the present. We will begin by discussing Cold War attempts to distinguish literature from propaganda, and then explore the growing significance of Jewish American literature in the context of Holocaust commemoration. Next we will discuss how other literatures of identity—such as African American literature, feminist literature, and the literatures of various ethnic and social groups—gained prominence during a period known as the "culture wars." We will also study the Beats and the emergence of postmodernism, paying particular attention to its relation to modernist innovations on the one hand and to activist movements on the other. One frame for these explorations will be the development of what scholars have begun to call "the program era," a historical period (extending from 1945 to the present) marked by the affiliation of writers with creative writing programs in universities. We will conclude by studying some of the literature written after 9/11 and also discuss the emergence of the digital humanities.

This - voluntary but highly recommended - tutorial is taught in conjunction with the class "Introducing Critical Theory I" (modules: B.AS.301; M.EP.01b; M.EP01b-L). The tutorial provides an opportunity to discuss the texts covered in the course, to address questions and to support the comprehension of the theories and critical concepts in question by means of close readings and in-depth discussion. Difficulties and questions regarding the theoretical texts can be addressed and revisited according to students' needs. Hence participating in the tutorial will also be helpful as a preparation for the final exam in the Critical Theory class.

Further material will be provided on Stud.IP.

Details about the organization of this tutorial will be announced in the first session.

Registration: Please register on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March 2021. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP as well.

Over the course of the twentieth century the art of poetry has manifested a tension between the private world of lyrical reflection and expressions of civic and personal rebellion.

This class will explore poetic rebellion, taking an in-depth approach to why, and what technical forms, these rebellions took. Focusing on key poems and texts from poetic uprisings such as the early twentieth-century Imagists, the 1920s Harlem Renaissance, mid-century formalism and women and civil rights' movement poetry of the 1960s, it will also look at the impact of these rebellions on recent poetry including the generation of Black Lives Matter.

Authors will include T.S. Eliot and H.D., Langston Hughes and Jean Toomer, W. H. Auden, Robert Lowell, Allen Ginsberg, Sylvia Plath, the later poems of Adrienne Rich, and Danez Smith. We will explore each poet's unique technical approach in their struggle to witness to the world's gifts and injustices. We will also, where relevant, look at parallel developments in world literature. Finally, throughout the class we will reflect on the idea, expressed by the Russian-American poet Joseph Brodsky in his Nobel Lecture, that poetry is an extraordinary accelerator of conscience and what that might mean for both poet and reader.

Our Earth is one that we inhabit together with many other beings—from rainforests and megafauna to fungi and the microbiome in our guts. Yet in most stories, whether news reports, novels, or nonfiction, an anthropocentric perspective still prevails: narratives focus on human characters, human lives, human strivings and relationships. This course sets out from the assumption that we need to reassess our worldviews, especially in the face of climate change, mass extinction, and pandemics—in times when the impact of human industries, economies, and exploitation jeopardize all earthly life forms. While ever more species are endangered and die out, people still often disregard our coevolution and interdependence with these "others" on our planet, whether other primates or microorganisms, including the land, water, and air we all rely on.

Hence, we will consider narratives and theories that propose different, more inclusive, but also more "alien" ways of presenting and conceptualizing planetary cohabitation. We will consider notions of immersion, kinship, companion species, and "arts of attentiveness" that take into account multispecies habitats and forms of coexistence in cities and beyond. We will ask which (imaginary) perspectives allow us to tell stories differently, to include the perceptions and experiences of nonhuman animals and plant life, perspectives that try to account for our complex entanglements, "transcorporeality," and "cross-species sociality." We will explore art, poetry, fiction and nonfiction by André Alexis, Diane Cook, Louise Erdrich, Jonathan Franzen, Lauren Groff, Linda Hogan, Barbara Kingsolver, Bill McKibben, Lydia Millet, Mary Oliver, and Rebecca Solnit alongside theoretical approaches by Stacy Alaimo, Karen Barad, Marc Beckoff, Donna Haraway, Tim Ingold, Eben Kirksey, Jamie Lorimer, Anna Tsing, Thom van Dooren and others.

The family has always sat at the heart of discourses negotiating American identity, concept(ions) of the home and belonging, and processes of inclusion or exclusion respectively. The nuclear family and alternatives to this concept - the latter often couched in terms of difference and deviation from the problematic notion of a standard or 'norm' - have been evoked to define and challenge American culture, placement in terms of class, and ideas revolving around race/ethnicity.

This class sets out to discuss the relevance of the family in and for recent American literature and culture (including film and TV). We will set out by tracing the (earlier) representations of the American family in literature and culture in order to gain an understanding of recent trends and developments as well as alternatives to conceptions of 'the American family' in contemporary texts.

How has the idea of today's American family been affected by discourses revolving around, for example, the middle class and the American Dream? How 'gendered' and 'ethnic' is the representation of the American family these days? How has 'family' affected the formation of (American) identity? And how exactly has this representation (re)considered and challenged values and mores, the above mentioned policies of inclusion and exclusion, etc.? How do different generations cope with each other and with societal changes - and how exactly are these processes enacted in narratives?

In order to trace these questions, we will investigate theoretical texts that engage with the socio-cultural formation and development of the American family, and then relate those discussions to selected writings (and potentially films and TV shows) in contemporary U.S.-American literature and culture.

A number of readings will come in the form of excerpts, single chapters, or articles; most texts will be made available in an e-reader via Stud.IP, but you are asked to purchase the three novels which we will discuss in full length: Jonathan Franzen's The Corrections (2001; Picador edition preferred), Celeste Ng's Everything I Never Told You (2014; Blackfriars edition preferred), and Jesmyn Ward's Sing, Unburied, Sing (2017; Bloomsbury edition preferred).

To ease their workload during the semester, students should consider reading the novels ahead of time.

Registration: Attendance for this class is limited to 20 students. Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March 2021 is required. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP as well. The class will start in the first week of the semester. This class will concentrate on three big midcentury novels: Ralph Ellison's Invisible Man (1952), Saul Bellow's The Adventures of Augie March (1953), and Katherine Anne Porter's Ship of Fools (1962). These novels are "big" in length (each weighs in at 500 pages or more) but also in perspective. They insist on the importance of point-of-view as both artistic technique and political principle. Point-of-view was a key component of a liberal aesthetic that emerged at midcentury. Artists, and indeed all people, had to be free to say what they wanted to say, from whatever perspective they wanted to say it. This is what distinguished liberalism from totalitarianism and art from propaganda. To writers schooled in the Cold War, individualism seemed like an effective way to resist the coercive "we" identities of communism (class) and fascism (race). Nevertheless, it had—and still has—its limits, since it has trouble recognizing the way liberal democracy creates social distinctions, often in unofficial ways, through racism, misogyny, and other forms of discrimination. The commitment to individualism, coupled with the awareness of its limits, informs the writing of Bellow, Porter, and Ellison. They insist on the sanctity of point-of-view while recognizing, in varying degrees, that individualism can mask selfishness, or that it can be experienced as loneliness or existential despair. The sheer scope of these novels can be understood as a frame for trying out (and just as often rejecting) multiple identities, precisely because the novelists fear that identity is coercive. In this they offer a marked contrast to current conceptions of identity, which unite individual notions of selfhood with broader allegiances of gender, ethnicity, sexual orientation, and class. Midcentury novels pledge their allegiance to perspective rather than to social groups, and in doing so offer a broad panorama of American attitudes at the moment the United States became a superpower and began to reckon with some of its own homegrown inequities.

Our Earth is one that we inhabit together with many other beings—from rainforests and megafauna to fungi and the microbiome in our guts. Yet in most stories, whether news reports, novels, or nonfiction, an anthropocentric perspective still prevails: narratives focus on human characters, human lives, human strivings and relationships. This course sets out from the assumption that we need to reassess our worldviews, especially in the face of climate change, mass extinction, and pandemics—in times when the impact of human industries, economies, and exploitation jeopardize all earthly life forms. While ever more species are endangered and die out, people still often disregard our coevolution and interdependence with these "others" on our planet, whether other primates or microorganisms, including the land, water, and air we all rely on.

Hence, we will consider narratives and theories that propose different, more inclusive, but also more "alien" ways of presenting and conceptualizing planetary cohabitation. We will consider notions of immersion, kinship, companion species, and "arts of attentiveness" that take into account multispecies habitats and forms of coexistence in cities and beyond. We will ask which (imaginary) perspectives allow us to tell stories differently, to include the perceptions and experiences of nonhuman animals and plant life, perspectives that try to account for our complex entanglements, "transcorporeality," and "cross-species sociality." We will explore art, poetry, fiction and nonfiction by André Alexis, Diane Cook, Louise Erdrich, Jonathan Franzen, Lauren Groff, Linda Hogan, Barbara Kingsolver, Bill McKibben, Lydia Millet, Mary Oliver, and Rebecca Solnit alongside theoretical approaches by Stacy Alaimo, Karen Barad, Marc Beckoff, Donna Haraway, Tim Ingold, Eben Kirksey, Jamie Lorimer, Anna Tsing, Thom van Dooren and others.

The family has always sat at the heart of discourses negotiating American identity, concept(ions) of the home and belonging, and processes of inclusion or exclusion respectively. The nuclear family and alternatives to this concept - the latter often couched in terms of difference and deviation from the problematic notion of a standard or 'norm' - have been evoked to define and challenge American culture, placement in terms of class, and ideas revolving around race/ethnicity.

This class sets out to discuss the relevance of the family in and for recent American literature and culture (including film and TV). We will set out by tracing the (earlier) representations of the American family in literature and culture in order to gain an understanding of recent trends and developments as well as alternatives to conceptions of 'the American family' in contemporary texts.

How has the idea of today's American family been affected by discourses revolving around, for example, the middle class and the American Dream? How 'gendered' and 'ethnic' is the representation of the American family these days? How has 'family' affected the formation of (American) identity? And how exactly has this representation (re)considered and challenged values and mores, the above mentioned policies of inclusion and exclusion, etc.? How do different generations cope with each other and with societal changes - and how exactly are these processes enacted in narratives?

In order to trace these questions, we will investigate theoretical texts that engage with the socio-cultural formation and development of the American family, and then relate those discussions to selected writings (and potentially films and TV shows) in contemporary U.S.-American literature and culture.

A number of readings will come in the form of excerpts, single chapters, or articles; most texts will be made available in an e-reader via Stud.IP, but you are asked to purchase the three novels which we will discuss in full length: Jonathan Franzen's The Corrections (2001; Picador edition preferred), Celeste Ng's Everything I Never Told You (2014; Blackfriars edition preferred), and Jesmyn Ward's Sing, Unburied, Sing (2017; Bloomsbury edition preferred).

To ease their workload during the semester, students should consider reading the novels ahead of time.

Registration: Attendance for this class is limited to 20 students. Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March 2021 is required. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP as well. The class will start in the first week of the semester. This class will concentrate on three big midcentury novels: Ralph Ellison's Invisible Man (1952), Saul Bellow's The Adventures of Augie March (1953), and Katherine Anne Porter's Ship of Fools (1962). These novels are "big" in length (each weighs in at 500 pages or more) but also in perspective. They insist on the importance of point-of-view as both artistic technique and political principle. Point-of-view was a key component of a liberal aesthetic that emerged at midcentury. Artists, and indeed all people, had to be free to say what they wanted to say, from whatever perspective they wanted to say it. This is what distinguished liberalism from totalitarianism and art from propaganda. To writers schooled in the Cold War, individualism seemed like an effective way to resist the coercive "we" identities of communism (class) and fascism (race). Nevertheless, it had—and still has—its limits, since it has trouble recognizing the way liberal democracy creates social distinctions, often in unofficial ways, through racism, misogyny, and other forms of discrimination. The commitment to individualism, coupled with the awareness of its limits, informs the writing of Bellow, Porter, and Ellison. They insist on the sanctity of point-of-view while recognizing, in varying degrees, that individualism can mask selfishness, or that it can be experienced as loneliness or existential despair. The sheer scope of these novels can be understood as a frame for trying out (and just as often rejecting) multiple identities, precisely because the novelists fear that identity is coercive. In this they offer a marked contrast to current conceptions of identity, which unite individual notions of selfhood with broader allegiances of gender, ethnicity, sexual orientation, and class. Midcentury novels pledge their allegiance to perspective rather than to social groups, and in doing so offer a broad panorama of American attitudes at the moment the United States became a superpower and began to reckon with some of its own homegrown inequities.

Kommentar

Over the course of the twentieth century the art of poetry has manifested a tension between the private world of lyrical reflection and expressions of civic and personal rebellion. This class will explore poetic rebellion, taking an in-depth approach to why, and what technical forms, these rebellions took. Focusing on key poems and texts from poetic uprisings such as the early twentieth-century Imagists, the 1920s Harlem Renaissance, mid-century formalism and women and civil rights' movement poetry of the 1960s, it will also look at the impact of these rebellions on recent poetry including the generation of Black Lives Matter.

Authors will include T.S. Eliot and H.D., Langston Hughes and Jean Toomer, W. H. Auden, Robert Lowell, Allen Ginsberg, Sylvia Plath, the later poems of Adrienne Rich, and Danez Smith. We will explore each poet's unique technical approach in their struggle to witness to the world's gifts and injustices. We will also, where relevant, look at parallel developments in world literature. Finally, throughout the class we will reflect on the idea, expressed by the Russian-American poet Joseph Brodsky in his Nobel Lecture, that poetry is an extraordinary accelerator of conscience and what that might mean for both poet and reader.

Readings:

The New Poetry, eds. Harriet Monroe and Alice Corbin Henderson (Introduction), 1921

T.S. Eliot: Essays, "Reflections on Vers Libre" (1917) "Yeats" (1940); T.S. Eliot, Selected Poems: "Preludes" (1917), "The Hollow Men" (1925), "The Wasteland" (1922, sections)

H.D.: "The Walls do Not Fall" (1940)

Simone Weil: (Essay) "The Great Beast"

The nuclear family and alternatives to this concept - the latter often couched in terms of difference and deviation from the problematic notion of a standard or 'norm' - have been evoked to define and challenge American culture, placement in terms of class, and ideas revolving around race/ethnicity.

This class sets out to discuss the relevance of the family in and for recent American literature and culture (including film and TV). We will set out by tracing the (earlier) representations of the American family in literature and culture in order to gain an understanding of recent trends and developments as well as alternatives to conceptions of 'the American family' in contemporary texts.

How has the idea of today's American family been affected by discourses revolving around, for example, the middle class and the American Dream? How 'gendered' and 'ethnic' is the representation of the American family these days? How has 'family' affected the formation of (American) identity? And how exactly has this representation (re)considered and challenged values and mores, the above mentioned policies of inclusion and exclusion, etc.? How do different generations cope with each other and with societal changes - and how exactly are these processes enacted in narratives?

In order to trace these questions, we will investigate theoretical texts that engage with the socio-cultural formation and development of the American family, and then relate those discussions to selected writings (and potentially films and TV shows) in contemporary U.S.-American literature and culture.

A number of readings will come in the form of excerpts, single chapters, or articles; most texts will be made available in an e-reader via Stud.IP, but you are asked to purchase the three novels which we will discuss in full length: Jonathan Franzen's The Corrections (2001; Picador edition preferred), Celeste Ng's Everything I Never Told You (2014; Blackfriars edition preferred), and Jesmyn Ward's Sing, Unburied, Sing (2017; Bloomsbury edition preferred).

To ease their workload during the semester, students should consider reading the novels ahead of time.

Registration: Attendance for this class is limited to 20 students. Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March 2021 is required. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP as well. The class will start in the first week of the semester. For final registration, participants need to attend the first session of class.

This class will concentrate on three big midcentury novels: Ralph Ellison's Invisible Man (1952), Saul Bellow's The Adventures of Augie March (1953), and Katherine Anne Porter's Ship of Fools (1962). These novels are "big" in length (each weighs in at 500 pages or more) but also in perspective. They insist on the importance of point-of-view as both artistic technique and political principle. Point-of-view was a key component of a liberal aesthetic that emerged at midcentury. Artists, and indeed all people, had to be free to say what they wanted to say, from whatever perspective they wanted to say it. This is what distinguished liberalism from totalitarianism and art from propaganda. To writers schooled in the Cold War, individualism seemed like an effective way to resist the coercive "we" identities of communism (class) and fascism (race). Nevertheless, it had—and still has—its limits, since it has trouble recognizing the way liberal democracy creates social distinctions, often in unofficial ways, through racism, misogyny, and other forms of discrimination. The commitment to individualism, coupled with the awareness of its limits, informs the writing of Bellow, Porter, and Ellison. They insist on the sanctity of point-of-view while recognizing, in varying degrees, that individualism can mask selfishness, or that it can be experienced as loneliness or existential despair. The sheer scope of these novels can be understood as a frame for trying out (and just as often rejecting) multiple identities, precisely because the novelists fear that identity is coercive. In this they offer a marked contrast to current conceptions of identity, which unite individual notions of selfhood with broader allegiances of gender, ethnicity, sexual orientation, and class. Midcentury novels pledge their allegiance to perspective rather than to social groups, and in doing so offer a broad panorama of American attitudes at the moment the United States became a superpower and began to reckon with some of its own homegrown inequities.

Reading List:

Ralph Ellison, Invisible Man (1952)

Saul Bellow, The Adventures of Augie March (1953)

Katherine Anne Porter, Ship of Fools (1962)

The colloquium invites advanced students who are preparing or already working on their B.A. or M.A. thesis. It will provide the opportunity to present and discuss your work in progress and receive valuable feedback. Further sessions will be on academic writing, research, and current developments in American cultural and literary studies as well as critical theory.

The course also gives students the opportunity to suggest specific topics and/or theoretical texts relevant to the field of American Studies and with regard to current research projects that may be taken up in individual class discussions. If you have a particular topic or text in mind that you want to propose for discussion, please send an email to Prof. Tischleder the beginning of the semester.

If you wish to take this colloquium as part of your "fachwissenschaftliche Vertiefung" (B.AS.501) or as part of your "Master-Abschlussmodul" (M.AS.04 or M.EP.06b), please come to the instructor's office hours well in advance.

Students who wish to take this class as part of module M.EP.09b and who need to write a 'Forschungsbericht' as a 'Prüfungsleistung' in this module, too, are asked to contact Prof. Tischleder before the beginning of the semester.

Please also note that we also recommend to take this colloquium as a voluntary component of module B.EP.51, i.e., before you prepare your B.A. thesis in North American Studies. While you will not be given credit for the colloquium in the context of this module, participation is still highly recommended.

Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March 2021 is required. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP. The class will start in the first week of the semester. For final registration, participants need to attend the first session of class.

The colloquium is designed to help BA- and MA-level students who are in the process of writing—or thinking about—the theses (BA-Arbeit/MA-Arbeit) necessary for the completion of their degrees. Students will have the opportunity to present their work-in-progress to their peers. Many sessions will be devoted to discussing student work. Other sessions will deal with topics in academic research and writing. We will also discuss current trends and methods in American studies and in critical theory. Students are invited to propose their own topics and texts for general discussion. Please get your suggestions to me as soon as possible so I can try to include them in the syllabus.

If you wish to take this colloquium as part of your "fachwissenschaftliche Vertiefung" (B.AS.501) or as part of your "Master-Abschlussmodul" (M.AS.04 or M.EP.6b), please come to the instructor's office hours well in advance.

This course introduces the cultural histories of feminisms in the United States and explores how women have addressed, and continue to address, gender inequalities. We will regard feminist critiques in a historical perspective, beginning with eighteenth century contributions, and discuss how early voices, including Abigail Adams, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, and Susan B. Anthony, have tackled feminist issues such as work, family, and politics. These topical points and other spaces of inequality will be important foci throughout this class, which further surveys the various "waves" of/in feminism as well as contemporary forms of feminist practices, including online feminist activism. Throughout this class, we will pay particular attention to sociopolitical and economic contexts as well as to rhetoric and argumentation of the featured texts, as the main purpose of this module is to give students a more in-depth view on American cultural history and an understanding as to how particular issues are mediated by use of modes of rhetoric, style, and framing as well as textual formats, frameworks, and traditions.

This course's syllabus and the required readings will made available on Stud.IP at the beginning of the term.

Kommentar	Since the beginning of the history of cinema, filmmakers have relied on literary works as sources for the stories they want to tell. Yet, the relationship between the two media has remained a difficult one and has been at the center of critical debates in both film and literary studies for a long time. The first part of this class will familiarize students with the key concepts of adaptation theory. Equipped with this expertise, we will read three novels and critically analyze and discuss them in comparison with their cinematic adaptations. The preliminary reading and viewing list consists of F. Scott Fitzgerald's novel The Great Gatsby (1925) and its adaptations by Jack Clayton (1974) and Baz Luhrmann (2013), Vladimir Nabokov's Lolita (1955) and its adaptations by Stanley Kubrick (1962) and Adrian

Lyne (1997), and finally Ira Levin's The Stepford Wives (1972) and its film versions by Bryan Forbes (1975) and Frank Oz (2004).

In this course we will consider the genre of the biopic - films that present on screen the biographies and/or significant episodes of the lives of well-known people: artists, writers, politicians, musicians, and other public figures. We will consider the biopic as a genre of life writing, a genre that comes in many different cinematic styles and a wide range of storytelling modes. Comparing a variety of biopics available (for the most part) on Netflix, we will analyze, identify, and interpret the different aesthetic and narrative devices used to chronicle individual lives. We will ask how biopics contextualize the lives of their protagonists within the historical, political, and cultural contexts of their time. What concepts of gender, race, class, age, and sexuality are seen to constitute biographical becoming? How do the films interweave memories, experiences, testimonials, photos, news reports, historical footage, sound bites, and voiceover narration into coherent or discontinuous life stories?

Biopics to be discussed include Joan Didion: The Center Will Not Hold, Becoming (Michelle Obama), I Am Not Your Negro (James Baldwin), What Happened, Miss Simone? (Nina Simone), Miles Davis: Birth of the Cool, Julian Schnabel: A Private Portrait, Diana: In Her Own Words, Rolling Thunder Revue: A Bob Dylan Story, The Death and Life of Martin Luther King Jr., Who Shot the Sheriff (Bob Marley), Gaga: Five Foot Two, Inside Bill's Brain: De-

coding Bill Gates, Jackie (Jacqueline Kennedy). A final selection of films, also based on availability on Netflix, will be presented at the beginning of the course.

Kommentar

Surveillance owes its public attention to a large extent to works of literature, film, and visual art that reflect, affirm, or contest various forms, systems, and situations of observation and monitoring. In doing so, these artistic works render a sociocultural practice tangible that is highly abstract and yet has always been inherent, unavoidable as well as inevitable to escape since the beginning of the modern age - and thus not only in our contemporary age of omnipresent CCTV-cameras, digital data mining, and online exhibitionism.

In this class we will discuss how visual and media culture address surveillance, both in terms of aesthetics and politics. Based on seminal theoretical texts from the field of surveillance studies, we will not only discuss examples of what film scholar Catherine Zimmer has recently called "surveillance cinema" but also works from media artists such as the Surveillance Camera Players collective, Trevor Paglen, Harun Farocki, Hasan M. Elahi, Jill Magid, or Hito Steyerl.

Kommentar Over the course of the twentieth century the art of poetry has manifested a tension between the private world of lyrical reflection and expressions of civic and personal rebellion. This class will explore poetic rebellion, taking an in-depth approach to why, and what technical forms, these rebellions took. Focusing on key poems and texts from poetic uprisings such as the early twentieth-century Imagists, the 1920s Harlem Renaissance, mid-century formalism and women and civil rights' movement poetry of the 1960s, it will also look at the impact of these rebellions on recent poetry including the generation of Black Lives Matter.

Our Earth is one that we inhabit together with many other beings—from rainforests and megafauna to fungi and the microbiome in our guts. Yet in most stories, whether news reports, novels, or nonfiction, an anthropocentric perspective still prevails: narratives focus on human characters, human lives, human strivings and relationships. This course sets out from the assumption that we need to reassess our worldviews, especially in the face of climate change, mass extinction, and pandemics—in times when the impact of human industries, economies, and exploitation jeopardize all earthly life forms. While ever more species are endangered and die out, people still often disregard our coevolution and interdependence with these "others" on our planet, whether other primates or microorganisms, including the land, water, and air we all rely on.

Hence, we will consider narratives and theories that propose different, more inclusive, but also more "alien" ways of presenting and conceptualizing planetary cohabitation. We will consider notions of immersion, kinship, companion species, and "arts of attentiveness" that take into account multispecies habitats and forms of coexistence in cities and beyond. We will ask which (imaginary) perspectives allow us to tell stories differently, to include the perceptions and experiences of nonhuman animals and plant life, perspectives that try to account for our complex entanglements, "transcorporeality," and "cross-species sociality." We will explore art, poetry, fiction and nonfiction by André Alexis, Diane Cook, Louise Erdrich, Jonathan Franzen, Lauren Groff, Linda Hogan, Barbara Kingsolver, Bill McKibben, Lydia Millet, Mary Oliver, and Rebecca Solnit alongside theoretical approaches by Stacy Alaimo, Karen Barad, Marc Beckoff, Donna Haraway, Tim Ingold, Eben Kirksey, Jamie Lorimer, Anna Tsing, Thom van Dooren and others.

Kommentar

The family has always sat at the heart of discourses negotiating American identity, concept(ions) of the home and belonging, and processes of inclusion or exclusion respectively. The nuclear family and alternatives to this concept - the latter often couched in terms of difference and deviation from the problematic notion of a standard or 'norm' - have been evoked to define and challenge American culture, placement in terms of class, and ideas revolving around race/ethnicity.

This class sets out to discuss the relevance of the family in and for recent American literature and culture (including film and TV). We will set out by tracing the (earlier) representations of the American family in literature and culture in order to gain an understanding of recent trends and developments as well as alternatives to conceptions of 'the American family' in contemporary texts.

How has the idea of today's American family been affected by discourses revolving around, for example, the middle class and the American Dream? How 'gendered' and 'ethnic' is the representation of the American family these days? How has 'family' affected the formation of (American) identity? And how exactly has this representation (re)considered and challenged values and mores, the above mentioned policies of inclusion and exclusion, etc.? How do different generations cope with each other and with societal changes - and how exactly are these processes enacted in narratives?

In order to trace these questions, we will investigate theoretical texts that engage with the socio-cultural formation and development of the American family, and then relate those discussions to selected writings (and potentially films and TV shows) in contemporary U.S.-American literature and culture.

A number of readings will come in the form of excerpts, single chapters, or articles; most texts will be made available in an e-reader via Stud.IP, but you are asked to purchase the three novels which we will discuss in full length: Jonathan Franzen's The Corrections (2001; Picador edition preferred), Celeste Ng's Everything I Never Told You (2014; Blackfriars edition preferred), and Jesmyn Ward's Sing, Unburied, Sing (2017; Bloomsbury edition preferred).

To ease their workload during the semester, students should consider reading the novels ahead of time.

Registration: Attendance for this class is limited to 20 students. Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March 2021 is required. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP as well. The class will start in the first week of the semester. This class will concentrate on three big midcentury novels: Ralph Ellison's Invisible Man (1952), Saul Bellow's The Adventures of Augie March (1953), and Katherine Anne Porter's Ship of Fools (1962). These novels are "big" in length (each weighs in at 500 pages or more) but also in perspective. They insist on the importance of point-of-view as both artistic technique and political principle. Point-of-view was a key component of a liberal aesthetic that emerged at midcentury. Artists, and indeed all people, had to be free to say what they wanted to say, from whatever perspective they wanted to say it. This is what distinguished liberalism from totalitarianism and art from propaganda. To writers schooled in the Cold War, individualism seemed like an effective way to resist the coercive "we" identities of communism (class) and fascism (race). Nevertheless, it had—and still has—its limits, since it has trouble recognizing the way liberal democracy creates social distinctions, often in unofficial ways, through racism, misogyny, and other forms of discrimination. The commitment to individualism, coupled with the awareness of its limits, informs the writing of Bellow, Porter, and Ellison. They insist on the sanctity of point-of-view while recognizing, in varying degrees, that individualism can mask selfishness, or that it can be experienced as loneliness or existential despair. The sheer scope of these novels can be understood as a frame for trying out (and just as often rejecting) multiple identities, precisely because the novelists fear that identity is coercive. In this they offer a marked contrast to current conceptions of identity, which unite individual notions of selfhood with broader allegiances of gender, ethnicity, sexual orientation, and class. Midcentury novels pledge their allegiance to perspective rather than to social groups, and in doing so offer a broad panorama of American attitudes at the moment the United States became a superpower and began to reckon with some of its own homegrown inequities.

Over the course of the twentieth century the art of poetry has manifested a tension between the private world of lyrical reflection and expressions of civic and personal rebellion. Yet in most stories, whether news reports, novels, or nonfiction, an anthropocentric perspective still prevails: narratives focus on human characters, human lives, human strivings and relationships. This course sets out from the assumption that we need to reassess our worldviews, especially in the face of climate change, mass extinction, and pandemics—in times when the impact of human industries, economies, and exploitation jeopardize all earthly life forms. While ever more species are endangered and die out, people still often disregard our coevolution and interdependence with these "others" on our planet, whether other primates or microorganisms, including the land, water, and air we all rely on.

Hence, we will consider narratives and theories that propose different, more inclusive, but also more "alien" ways of presenting and conceptualizing planetary cohabitation. We will consider notions of immersion, kinship, companion species, and "arts of attentiveness" that take into account multispecies habitats and forms of coexistence in cities and beyond. We will ask which (imaginary) perspectives allow us to tell stories differently, to include the perceptions and experiences of nonhuman animals and plant life, perspectives that try to account for our complex entanglements, "transcorporeality," and "cross-species sociality." We will explore art, poetry, fiction and nonfiction by André Alexis, Diane Cook, Louise Erdrich, Jonathan Franzen, Lauren Groff, Linda Hogan, Barbara Kingsolver, Bill McKibben, Lydia Millet, Mary Oliver, and Rebecca Solnit alongside theoretical approaches by Stacy Alaimo, Karen Barad, Marc Beckoff, Donna Haraway, Tim Ingold, Eben Kirksey, Jamie Lorimer, Anna Tsing, Thom van Dooren and others.

The family has always sat at the heart of discourses negotiating American identity, concept(ions) of the home and belonging, and processes of inclusion or exclusion respectively. The nuclear family and alternatives to this concept - the latter often couched in terms of difference and deviation from the problematic notion of a standard or 'norm' - have been evoked to define and challenge American culture, placement in terms of class, and ideas revolving around race/ethnicity.

This class sets out to discuss the relevance of the family in and for recent American literature and culture (including film and TV). We will set out by tracing the (earlier) representations of the American family in literature and culture in order to gain an understanding of recent trends and developments as well as alternatives to conceptions of 'the American family' in contemporary texts.

How has the idea of today's American family been affected by discourses revolving around, for example, the middle class and the American Dream? How 'gendered' and 'ethnic' is the representation of the American family these days? How has 'family' affected the formation of (American) identity? And how exactly has this representation (re)considered and challenged values and mores, the above mentioned policies of inclusion and exclusion, etc.? How do different generations cope with each other and with societal changes - and how exactly are these processes enacted in narratives?

In order to trace these questions, we will investigate theoretical texts that engage with the socio-cultural formation and development of the American family, and then relate those discussions to selected writings (and potentially films and TV shows) in contemporary U.S.-American literature and culture.

A number of readings will come in the form of excerpts, single chapters, or articles; most texts will be made available in an e-reader via Stud.IP, but you are asked to purchase the three novels which we will discuss in full length: Jonathan Franzen's The Corrections (2001; Picador edition preferred), Celeste Ng's Everything I Never Told You (2014; Blackfriars edition preferred), and Jesmyn Ward's Sing, Unburied, Sing (2017; Bloomsbury edition preferred).

To ease their workload during the semester, students should consider reading the novels ahead of time.

Registration: Attendance for this class is limited to 20 students. Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March 2021 is required. ## Kommentar

This class will concentrate on three big midcentury novels: Ralph Ellison's Invisible Man (1952), Saul Bellow's The Adventures of Augie March (1953), and Katherine Anne Porter's Ship of Fools (1962). These novels are "big" in length (each weighs in at 500 pages or more) but also in perspective. They insist on the importance of point-of-view as both artistic technique and political principle. Point-of-view was a key component of a liberal aesthetic that emerged at midcentury. Artists, and indeed all people, had to be free to say what they wanted to say, from whatever perspective they wanted to say it. This is what distinguished liberalism from totalitarianism and art from propaganda. To writers schooled in the Cold War, individualism seemed like an effective way to resist the coercive "we" identities of communism (class) and fascism (race). Nevertheless, it had—and still has—its limits, since it has trouble recognizing the way liberal democracy creates social distinctions, often in unofficial ways, through racism, misogyny, and other forms of discrimination. The commitment to individualism, coupled with the awareness of its limits, informs the writing of Bellow, Porter, and Ellison. They insist on the sanctity of point-of-view while recognizing, in varying degrees, that individualism can mask selfishness, or that it can be experienced as loneliness or existential despair. The sheer scope of these novels can be understood as a frame for trying out (and just as often rejecting) multiple identities, precisely because the novelists fear that identity is coercive. In this they offer a marked contrast to current conceptions of identity, which unite individual notions of selfhood with broader allegiances of gender, ethnicity, sexual orientation, and class. Midcentury novels pledge their allegiance to perspective rather than to social groups, and in doing so offer a broad panorama of American attitudes at the moment the United States became a superpower and began to reckon with some of its own homegrown inequities.

Kommentar

Over the course of the twentieth century the art of poetry has manifested a tension between the private world of lyrical reflection and expressions of civic and personal rebellion. This class will explore poetic rebellion, taking an in-depth approach to why, and what technical forms, these rebellions took. Focusing on key poems and texts from poetic uprisings such as the early twentieth-century Imagists, the 1920s Harlem Renaissance, mid-century formalism and women and civil rights' movement poetry of the 1960s, it will also look at the impact of these rebellions on recent poetry including the generation of Black Lives Matter.

Authors will include T.S. Eliot and H.D., Langston Hughes and Jean Toomer, W. H. Auden, Robert Lowell, Allen Ginsberg, Sylvia Plath, the later poems of Adrienne Rich, and Danez Smith. We will explore each poet's unique technical approach in their struggle to witness to the world's gifts and injustices. We will also, where relevant, look at parallel developments in world literature. Finally, throughout the class we will reflect on the idea, expressed by the Russian-American poet Joseph Brodsky in his Nobel Lecture, that poetry is an extraordinary accelerator of conscience and what that might mean for both poet and reader.

Readings:

The New Poetry, eds. Harriet Monroe and Alice Corbin Henderson (Introduction), 1921

T.S. Eliot: Essays, "Reflections on Vers Libre" (1917) "Yeats" (1940); T.S. Eliot, Selected Poems: "Preludes" (1917), "The Hollow Men" (1925), "The Wasteland" (1922, sections)

H.D.: "The Walls do Not Fall" (1940)

Simone Weil: (Essay) "The Great Beast"

Langston Hughes: The Collected Poems of Langston Hughes, 1995; "The Colored Soldier" (1919), "Troubled Woman" (1920), "I Too Sing America" (1926), "Let America be America Again" (1936), "Harlem/Good Morning Daddy" (1951)

Jean Toomer: The Collected Poems of Jean Toomer, 1988; "Reapers" (1923), "Harvest Song" (1923), "Prayer"

W. H. Auden: "In Memory of W.B. Yeats" (1939)

Robert Lowell: "Man and Wife" (1959)

Elizabeth Bishop: "One Art" (1976)

Allen Ginsberg: "Howl" (1955)

Sylvia Plath: "The Colossus" (1960), "The Manor Garden", "Black Rook in Rainy Weather"; Ariel (1965): "Morning Song", "The Applicant"

Adrienne Rich: The Dream of a Common Language (1978); "Origins and History of Consciousness", "Cartographies of Silence", "Towards the Solstice", "Transcendental Etude"

Our Earth is one that we inhabit together with many other beings—from rainforests and megafauna to fungi and the microbiome in our guts. Yet in most stories, whether news reports, novels, or nonfiction, an anthropocentric perspective still prevails: narratives focus on human characters, human lives, human strivings and relationships. This course sets out from the assumption that we need to reassess our worldviews, especially in the face of climate change, mass extinction, and pandemics—in times when the impact of human industries, economies, and exploitation jeopardize all earthly life forms. While ever more species are endangered and die out, people still often disregard our coevolution and interdependence with these "others" on our planet, whether other primates or microorganisms, including the land, water, and air we all rely on.

Hence, we will consider narratives and theories that propose different, more inclusive, but also more "alien" ways of presenting and conceptualizing planetary cohabitation. We will consider notions of immersion, kinship, companion species, and "arts of attentiveness" that take into account multispecies habitats and forms of coexistence in cities and beyond. We will ask which (imaginary) perspectives allow us to tell stories differently, to include the perceptions and experiences of nonhuman animals and plant life, perspectives that try to account for our complex entanglements, "transcorporeality," and "cross-species sociality." How do different generations cope with each other and with societal changes - and how exactly are these processes enacted in narratives?

In order to trace these questions, we will investigate theoretical texts that engage with the socio-cultural formation and development of the American family, and then relate those discussions to selected writings (and potentially films and TV shows) in contemporary U.S.-American literature and culture.

A number of readings will come in the form of excerpts, single chapters, or articles; most texts will be made available in an e-reader via Stud.IP, but you are asked to purchase the three novels which we will discuss in full length: Jonathan Franzen's The Corrections (2001; Picador edition preferred), Celeste Ng's Everything I Never Told You (2014; Blackfriars edition preferred), and Jesmyn Ward's Sing, Unburied, Sing (2017; Bloomsbury edition preferred).

To ease their workload during the semester, students should consider reading the novels ahead of time.

Registration: Attendance for this class is limited to 20 students. Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March 2021 is required. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP as well. The class will start in the first week of the semester. For final registration, participants need to attend the first session of class.

Please note that this class will be taught online.

Independent Study: Please note that this class also has independent study components (as part of modules B.AS.401; B.AS.402; B.EP.51; M.EP.04b)

This class will concentrate on three big midcentury novels: Ralph Ellison's Invisible Man (1952), Saul Bellow's The Adventures of Augie March (1953), and Katherine Anne Porter's Ship of Fools (1962). These novels are "big" in length (each weighs in at 500 pages or more) but also in perspective. They insist on the importance of point-of-view as both artistic technique and political principle. Point-of-view was a key component of a liberal aesthetic that emerged at midcentury. Artists, and indeed all people, had to be free to say what they wanted to say, from whatever perspective they wanted to say it. This is what distinguished liberalism from totalitarianism and art from propaganda. To writers schooled in the Cold War, individualism seemed like an effective way to resist the coercive "we" identities of communism (class) and fascism (race). Nevertheless, it had—and still has—its limits, since it has trouble recognizing the way liberal democracy creates social distinctions, often in unofficial ways, through racism, misogyny, and other forms of discrimination. The commitment to individualism, coupled with the awareness of its limits, informs the writing of Bellow, Porter, and Ellison. They insist on the sanctity of point-of-view while recognizing, in varying degrees, that individualism can mask selfishness, or that it can be experienced as loneliness or existential despair. The sheer scope of these novels can be understood as a frame for trying out (and just as often rejecting) multiple identities, precisely because the novelists fear that identity is coercive. In this they offer a marked contrast to current conceptions of identity, which unite individual notions of selfhood with broader allegiances of gender, ethnicity, sexual orientation, and class. Midcentury novels pledge their allegiance to perspective rather than to social groups, and in doing so offer a broad panorama of American attitudes at the moment the United States became a superpower and began to reckon with some of its own homegrown inequities.

Kommentar

The colloquium invites advanced students who are preparing or already working on their B.A. or M.A. thesis. It will provide the opportunity to present and discuss your work in progress and receive valuable feedback. Further sessions will be on academic writing, research, and current developments in American cultural and literary studies as well as critical theory.

The course also gives students the opportunity to suggest specific topics and/or theoretical texts relevant to the field of American Studies and with regard to current research projects that may be taken up in individual class discussions. If you have a particular topic or text in mind that you want to propose for discussion, please send an email to Prof. Tischleder the beginning of the semester.

If you wish to take this colloquium as part of your "fachwissenschaftliche Vertiefung" (B.AS.501) or as part of your "Master-Abschlussmodul" (M.AS.04 or M.EP.06b), please come to the instructor's office hours well in advance.

Students who wish to take this class as part of module M.EP.09b and who need to write a 'Forschungsbericht' as a 'Prüfungsleistung' in this module, too, are asked to contact Prof. Tischleder before the beginning of the semester.

Please also note that we also recommend to take this colloquium as a voluntary component of module B.EP.51, i.e., before you prepare your B.A. thesis in North American Studies. While you will not be given credit for the colloquium in the context of this module, participation is still highly recommended.

Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March 2021 is required. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP. The class will start in the first week of the semester. For final registration, participants need to attend the first session of class.

The colloquium is designed to help BA- and MA-level students who are in the process of writing—or thinking about—the theses (BA-Arbeit/MA-Arbeit) necessary for the completion of their degrees. Students will have the opportunity to present their work-in-progress to their peers. Many sessions will be devoted to discussing student work. Other sessions will deal with topics in academic research and writing. We will also discuss current trends and methods in American studies and in critical theory. Students are invited to propose their own topics and texts for general discussion. Please get your suggestions to me as soon as possible so I can try to include them in the syllabus.

If you wish to take this colloquium as part of your "fachwissenschaftliche Vertiefung" (B.AS.501) or as part of your "Master-Abschlussmodul" (M.AS.04 or M.EP.6b), please come to the instructor's office hours well in advance.

This lecture series offers an overview of the literature and culture of the British Empire from the 16th century to the present. It focuses on the interaction between literature, media, culture, and the society that shaped the British Empire and discusses, in turn, how the empire shaped the UK over the centuries. The lecture series begins with a discussion of literary texts from the first voyages of exploration in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries and works its way through the centuries, ending with the literature and culture of decolonization, transculturation, and the BLM movement. Students are expected to read both primary and secondary source material as part of the lecture series, including novels, poems, essays, travel writing, and theoretical texts. Secondary sources are also part of the recommended reading. In addition to literary material, sources to be studied include film excerpts, drawings, material objects, maps etc. The lecture series illustrates how contemporary British literature and culture is still shaped by the history of empire-building, and how worldwide relations until this day are partly influenced by the legacy of the British Empire.

This lecture course is intended to familiarize students with some of the dominant trends in American poetry and fiction from the end of World War II to the present. We will begin by discussing Cold War attempts to distinguish literature from propaganda, and then explore the growing significance of Jewish American literature in the context of Holocaust commemoration. Next we will discuss how other literatures of identity—such as African American literature, feminist literature, and the literatures of various ethnic and social groups—gained prominence during a period known as the "culture wars." We will also study the Beats and the emergence of postmodernism, paying particular attention to its relation to modernist innovations on the one hand and to activist movements on the other. One frame for these explorations will be the development of what scholars have begun to call "the program era," a historical period (extending from 1945 to the present) marked by the affiliation of writers with creative writing programs in universities. We will conclude by studying some of the literature written after 9/11 and also discuss the emergence of the digital humanities.

Kommentar

In this seminar we will explore literature that reflects transcultural (as opposed to postcolonial or multicultural) sensibilities. Apart from clarifying the respective terminology (transculturalism, transculturality, transnation etc.) and mediating possible theoretical approaches to transcultural literary texts, the seminar also serves as an arena in which we will discuss the following topics: the geographical, linguistic and cultural displacement of transcultural authors and their characters; the challenges of divided loyalties and allegiances; nomadic personalities; the subject of belonging and related questions concerning identity (i.e. notions of "in-betweenness", "beings in process", or "hybridity"); coping with cultural difference; as well as the development of literary forms of writing doing justice to all of the above. The following fields of interest will be pursued in detail and through the study of representative texts: colonialism/postcolonialism (Conrad, Naipaul); transcultural romance (Soueif); transnational detection (Ishiguro); identity and intertextuality (Rushdie); the transcultural city, transcultural lives and transcultural art (Brand).

Readings: Joseph Conrad, Heart of Darkness; V.S. Naipaul, A Bend in the River; Ahdaf Soueif, The Map of Love; Kazuo Ishiguro, When We Were Orphans; Salman Rushdie, The Moor's Last Sigh; and Dionne Brand, What We All Long For. Make sure that you have read these novels before the seminar begins!

Kommentar

The abolition of slavery in Britain in 1833 was the result of sustained efforts by anti-slavery activists who formed the Committee for the Abolition of the Slave Trade. Their first political victory was the 1807 Slave Trade Act abolishing slave trade in the British colonies as well as the transportation of slaves on British ships. This was followed by the 1833 Abolition of Slavery Act passed under the influence of the Anti-Slavery society founded in 1823 whose members held seats in Parliament. Black writers like the so-called "Sons of Africa," Olaudah Equiano (The Interesting Narrative of the Life of Olaudah Equiano, 1789), Ottobah Cugoano (Thoughts and Sentiments on the Evil and Wicked Traffic of the Slavery and Commerce of the Human Species, 1787), or Ignatius Sancho (The Letters of the Late Ignatius Sancho, an African, posthumously published in 1782), were instrumental in advancing the abolitionist cause. At the same time, contemporary literature engages with the topic, rewriting some of the tropes of the abolitionist canon. We shall read texts by Equiano, Cugoano and Sancho as well as George Elliott Clarke's play, Beatrice Chancy (1999) and Lawrence Hill's 2007 novel, The Book of Negroes (US: Someone Knows My Name). Please get hold of your own copies of the texts and read at least Equiano's Interesting Narrative and Hill's Book of Negroes before the start of the term.

All reading on the syllabus is obligatory. Attendance in the first session is obligatory.

Kommentar	We will start with definitions of science fiction and will then read a few short stories by the author, to put him into context, before we dive into a selection of his early novel length works. They have been called literary science fiction with a distinct Scottish voice, many of them centered around The Culture , a "spreading socialist utopia" in the Milky Way Galaxy. Trivially speaking, one could also call them space opera. Possible aspects for analysis could be gender equality, criticism of religion, and contemporary political commentary (80s/90s Britain), among others. Previous interest in science fiction as a genre is helpful but not necessary for this class.  Warning: contains detailed depictions of extreme violence!  Required reading:  The State of the Art , short story collection, Orbit, e.g. ISBN: 1-85723-030-2  25 years of Culture , boxset, Orbit, e.g. ISBN: 978-0-356-50209-0 (contains 3 novels: Consider Phlebas , The Player of Games , Use of Weapons )  Registration in StudIP: 1 March to 1 April

Kommentar This lecture series offers an overview of the literature and culture of the British Empire from the 16th century to the present. It focuses on the interaction between literature, media, culture, and the society that shaped the British Empire and discusses, in turn, how the empire shaped the UK over the centuries. The lecture series begins with a discussion of literary texts from the first voyages of exploration in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries and works its way through the centuries, ending with the literature and culture of decolonization, transculturation, and the BLM movement. Students are expected to read both primary and secondary source material as part of the lecture series, including novels, poems, essays, travel writing, and theoretical texts. Secondary sources are also part of the recommended reading. In addition to literary material, sources to be studied include film excerpts, drawings, material objects, maps etc. The lecture series illustrates how contemporary British literature and culture is still shaped by the history of empire-building, and how worldwide relations until this day are partly influenced by the legacy of the British Empire.

Lange Zeit erschien die Weimarer Republik in der Historiographie als ein im Wesentlichen nur hinsichtlich der zu zahlenden Reparationen in ein internationales Beziehungsgeflecht eingebundener Staat. Mittlerweile gewinnen vielfältige andere Formen trans/internationaler Verflechtungen an Konturen. So intensivierten sich nach 1918 die Kontakte zwischen den Staaten, Hilfsorganisationen, Experten und politischen Aktivisten auch aus Deutschland dank des neuen Völkerbundes mit seinen zahlreichen Unterorganisationen sowie im Rahmen traditioneller und neuer sich als international definierender politischer Bewegungen. Prozesse der Wahrnehmung, kontroversen Diskussion und Aneignung von Einflüssen der USA kamen hinzu. Zugleich gaben die mit Abstimmungskampagnen und gewaltsamen Auseinandersetzungen verbundenen Gebietsverluste im Gefolge des Versailler Vertrages politischen Konzepten Auftrieb, die über die Rückgewinnung dieser Gebiete hinaus eine weitere Verschiebung der deutschen Grenzen im Westen wie im Osten anvisierten. Das Seminar wird diesen sehr verschiedenen Formen von trans/internationalen Verflechtungen, Austausch und Aneignung nachgehen und dabei auch diskutieren, inwiefern durch eine derartige Fokussierung die vorherrschende Deutung der Zwischenkriegszeit als "Katastrophenzeitalter" (Hobsbawm) zu modifizieren ist.

Kommentar Das Seminar befasst sich mit Formen literarischer Wertung und mit Mechanismen der Kanonbildung in den letzten 200 Jahren. Was wird eigentlich gewertet, wenn Literatur gewertet wird? Was bedeuten die Begriffe "axiologischer Wert", "attributiver Wert" und "Wertprinzip"? Wie läuft ein Wertungsprozess ab? Was wissen wir über die Geschichte des Klassik-Begriffs? Wie werden nationale und internationale Kanonisierungsprozesse gesteuert? Können nationale Klassik und nationale Identität miteinander zusammenhängen? Welche Rolle spielen Autoren-Selbstinszenierungsstrategien?

Diesen Fragen werden wir nachgehen, indem wir in den ersten drei Sitzungen wichtige Texte der literaturwissenschaftlichen Kanonforschung kennenlernen und uns dann der Selbstinszenierung im Kontext der vorromantischen, romantischen und modernen Genieästhetik zuwenden, Einiges über die Funktion von Literaturhäusern, Literaturkritiken und Literatursendungen erfahren, uns über den Ablauf von Dichterlesungen und Literaturwettbewerben informieren und uns schließlich gemeinsam Gedanken über die Funktion von literarischen Skandalen machen.

Zur Seminarorganisation: Die Studierenden erarbeiten in Gruppenarbeit jeweils viermal pro Semester kurze Stellungnahmen zu den einzelnen Themen, die dann in den wöchentlichen Online-Sitzungen besprochen werden sollen. Der Seminarplan wird in der ersten Sitzung vorgestellt. Eigene Vorschläge zur Gruppenzusammensetzung und eigene Themenvorschläge sind ausdrücklich willkommen (bitte Mail an die Dozentin!).

Kommentar August Strindberg

Der "erste Geist Europas" und ein "gewaltig schamloser Bekenner" sei August Strindberg gewesen, urteilte Thomas Mann in seinem Nachruf auf den 1912 verstorbenen Schweden; für Max Reinhardt, der wesentlich zur Verbreitung von Strindbergs Dramatik auf den deutschen Bühnen beitrug, war Strindberg sogar eine "eine wahrhaft faustische Natur [...], wie von einem bösen Geist durch alle Höhen und Tiefen des Lebens geschleppt". 'Geistereien' also im mindestens zweifachen Sinn... Da fügt es sich gut, dass von Strindbergs 60 Theaterstücken eines der bedeutendsten den Titel Spöksonaten ("Gespenster-sonate") trägt.

Im deutschen Sprachraum lange Zeit in erster Linie als Dramatiker - und, bis zu einem gewissen Grad, als Antipode des Norwegers Henrik Ibsen - bekannt, wird Strindberg in Schweden gleichermaßen als Erzähler, Essayist, polemischer Satiriker und manischer Tagebuch- und Briefeschreiber estimiert. Die überlieferte Verfasserschaft sowohl an vollendeten Werken wie an Entwürfen und Notizen ist gewaltig, ja "[k]aum zu überblicken", wie Heinrich Detering in einem Beitrag für die FAZ (2.11.1999) potentiellen Strindberg-Lesern und -Erkundern fast drohend verkündete. Dass Strindberg nicht nur schriftstellerisch in Erscheinung trat, sondern sich auch als Maler, Fotograf und Chemiker (und/oder Alchimist) betätigte, macht die Angelegenheit nicht eben übersichtlicher.

Trotz oder gerade wegen dieser scheinbar düsteren Aussichten wird die Vorlesung den kühnen Versuch wagen, in das riesenhafte Werk August Strindbergs einzuleiten und die wesentlichen Linien seines literarischen Schaffens zu skizzieren. Einen gewissen Schwerpunkt werden dabei neben den Dramen und autobiographischen Schriften vor allem Strindbergs Erzählungen und Romane bilden. Auch die erwähnte bildkünstlerische Produktion und Strindbergs Beziehungen zu den Naturwissenschaften soll zumindest gestreift werden. Obschon Strindberg in den skandinavistischen Lektürekanon vorrangig als Repräsentant des sog. Modernen Durchbruchs eingegangen ist, wird Strindbergs Stellung zur (und innerhalb der) Moderne umsichtig zu beleuchten sein; den lang verkündeten "Tod des Autors" geflissentlich übersehend, wird auch die von H. Detering betonte "Auslöschung der Trennlinie zwischen Leben und Schreiben" im 'Fall Strindberg' zur Debatte stehen.

Kommentar

Our Earth is one that we inhabit together with many other beings—from rainforests and megafauna to fungi and the microbiome in our guts. Yet in most stories, whether news reports, novels, or nonfiction, an anthropocentric perspective still prevails: narratives focus on human characters, human lives, human strivings and relationships. This course sets out from the assumption that we need to reassess our worldviews, especially in the face of climate change, mass extinction, and pandemics—in times when the impact of human industries, economies, and exploitation jeopardize all earthly life forms. While ever more species are endangered and die out, people still often disregard our coevolution and interdependence with these "others" on our planet, whether other primates or microorganisms, including the land, water, and air we all rely on.

Hence, we will consider narratives and theories that propose different, more inclusive, but also more "alien" ways of presenting and conceptualizing planetary cohabitation. We will consider notions of immersion, kinship, companion species, and "arts of attentiveness" that take into account multispecies habitats and forms of coexistence in cities and beyond. We will ask which (imaginary) perspectives allow us to tell stories differently, to include the perceptions and experiences of nonhuman animals and plant life, perspectives that try to account for our complex entanglements, "transcorporeality," and "cross-species sociality." We will explore art, poetry, fiction and nonfiction by André Alexis, Diane Cook, Louise Erdrich, Jonathan Franzen, Lauren Groff, Linda Hogan, Barbara Kingsolver, Bill McKibben, Lydia Millet, Mary Oliver, and Rebecca Solnit alongside theoretical approaches by Stacy Alaimo, Karen Barad, Marc Beckoff, Donna Haraway, Tim Ingold, Eben Kirksey, Jamie Lorimer, Anna Tsing, Thom van Dooren and others.

Kommentar	Das über Jahrhunderte unangefochtene Leitmedium "Buch" steht heute in einer Konkurrenz mit anderen Medien, aber es ist auch Teil der Medienlandschaft. - In diesem Seminar zur Mediengeschichte des Buches wollen wir das Medium Buch in seiner geschichtlichen Entwicklung begleiten: von den Papyri und Buchrollen der Antike mit einer großen Bibliothekskultur. Weitere Themen sind die Skriptorien des Mittelalters und seine prächtige Buchkunst, gefolgt von der Revolution des Buchwesens durch Gutenberg, der allerdings nicht das Drucken erfunden hat. In der Neuzeit beobachten wir die gesellschaftlichen Auswirkungen des Buchdrucks (Stichwort Reformation) bis hin zur industriellen Produktion von Büchern seit dem 19. Jahrhundert, die in der Verbreitung des "Taschenbuchs" in der zweiten Hälfte des 20. Jahrhunderts gipfelt. Eine zweite Revolution im Buchwesen ist die Digitalisierung seit den 80er-Jahren des vergangenen Jahrhunderts. Diese Veränderungen sind nicht abgeschlossen; wir werden auch die aktuellen Entwicklungen Bereich der Publikums- und der Fachliteratur bzw. ihrer Verlage beobachten. Neben der großen historischen Linie bleibt genug Freiraum für Detailuntersuchungen, etwa zur Bibliophilie und Bibliomanie, auch zu ästhetischen und technischen Fragen oder Betrachtungen zum Buchmarkt. Vorschläge der Teilnehmenden sind willkommen, gerne auch schon vor der ersten Sitzung. Das Seminar setzt auf aktive Teilnahme, Bereitschaft zur Übernahme eines Referats oder Koreferats wird vorausgesetzt.

Kommentar

Over the course of the twentieth century the art of poetry has manifested a tension between the private world of lyrical reflection and expressions of civic and personal rebellion. This class will explore poetic rebellion, taking an in-depth approach to why, and what technical forms, these rebellions took. Focusing on key poems and texts from poetic uprisings such as the early twentieth-century Imagists, the 1920s Harlem Renaissance, mid-century formalism and women and civil rights' movement poetry of the 1960s, it will also look at the impact of these rebellions on recent poetry including the generation of Black Lives Matter.

Authors will include T.S. Eliot and H.D., Langston Hughes and Jean Toomer, W. H. Auden, Robert Lowell, Allen Ginsberg, Sylvia Plath, the later poems of Adrienne Rich, and Danez Smith. We will explore each poet's unique technical approach in their struggle to witness to the world's gifts and injustices. We will also, where relevant, look at parallel developments in world literature. Finally, throughout the class we will reflect on the idea, expressed by the Russian-American poet Joseph Brodsky in his Nobel Lecture, that poetry is an extraordinary accelerator of conscience and what that might mean for both poet and reader.

Readings:

The New Poetry, eds. Harriet Monroe and Alice Corbin Henderson (Introduction), 1921

T.S. Eliot: Essays, "Reflections on Vers Libre" (1917) "Yeats" (1940); T.S. Eliot, Selected Poems: "Preludes" (1917), "The Hollow Men" (1925), "The Wasteland" (1922, sections)

H.D.: "The Walls do Not Fall" (1940)

Simone Weil: (Essay) "The Great Beast"

Langston Hughes: The Collected Poems of Langston Hughes, 1995; "The Colored Soldier" (1919), "Troubled Woman" (1920), "I Too Sing America" (1926), "Let America be America Again" (1936), "Harlem/Good Morning Daddy" (1951)

Jean Toomer: The Collected Poems of Jean Toomer, 1988; "Reapers" (1923), "Harvest Song" (1923), "Prayer"

W. H. Auden: "In Memory of W.B. Yeats" (1939)

Robert Lowell: "Man and Wife" (1959)

Elizabeth Bishop: "One Art" (1976)

Allen Ginsberg: "Howl" (1955)

Sylvia Plath: "The Colossus" (1960), "The Manor Garden", "Black Rook in Rainy Weather"; Ariel (1965): "Morning Song", "The Applicant"

Adrienne Rich: The Dream of a Common Language (1978); "Origins and History of Consciousness", "Cartographies of Silence", "Towards the Solstice", "Transcendental Etude"

Audre Lorde: "Who Said it was Simple" (1973), "A Litany for Survival" (1978)

Danez Smith: "Dear White America" (2017), "Tonight, in Oakland" (2015), "Sideshow" (2014)

Kommentar

The family has always sat at the heart of discourses negotiating American identity, concept(ions) of the home and belonging, and processes of inclusion or exclusion respectively. The nuclear family and alternatives to this concept - the latter often couched in terms of difference and deviation from the problematic notion of a standard or 'norm' - have been evoked to define and challenge American culture, placement in terms of class, and ideas revolving around race/ethnicity.

This class sets out to discuss the relevance of the family in and for recent American literature and culture (including film and TV). We will set out by tracing the (earlier) representations of the American family in literature and culture in order to gain an understanding of recent trends and developments as well as alternatives to conceptions of 'the American family' in contemporary texts.

How has the idea of today's American family been affected by discourses revolving around, for example, the middle class and the American Dream? How 'gendered' and 'ethnic' is the representation of the American family these days? How has 'family' affected the formation of (American) identity? And how exactly has this representation (re)considered and challenged values and mores, the above mentioned policies of inclusion and exclusion, etc.? How do different generations cope with each other and with societal changes - and how exactly are these processes enacted in narratives?

In order to trace these questions, we will investigate theoretical texts that engage with the socio-cultural formation and development of the American family, and then relate those discussions to selected writings (and potentially films and TV shows) in contemporary U.S.-American literature and culture.

A number of readings will come in the form of excerpts, single chapters, or articles; most texts will be made available in an e-reader via Stud.IP, but you are asked to purchase the three novels which we will discuss in full length: Jonathan Franzen's The Corrections (2001; Picador edition preferred), Celeste Ng's Everything I Never Told You (2014; Blackfriars edition preferred), and Jesmyn Ward's Sing, Unburied, Sing (2017; Bloomsbury edition preferred).

To ease their workload during the semester, students should consider reading the novels ahead of time.

Registration: Attendance for this class is limited to 20 students. Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March 2021 is required. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP as well. The class will start in the first week of the semester. Kommentar Das Seminar befasst sich mit Formen literarischer Wertung und mit Mechanismen der Kanonbildung in den letzten 200 Jahren. Was wird eigentlich gewertet, wenn Literatur gewertet wird? Was bedeuten die Begriffe "axiologischer Wert", "attributiver Wert" und "Wertprinzip"? Wie läuft ein Wertungsprozess ab? Was wissen wir über die Geschichte des Klassik-Begriffs? Wie werden nationale und internationale Kanonisierungsprozesse gesteuert? Können nationale Klassik und nationale Identität miteinander zusammenhängen? Welche Rolle spielen Autoren-Selbstinszenierungsstrategien?

Diesen Fragen werden wir nachgehen, indem wir in den ersten drei Sitzungen wichtige Texte der literaturwissenschaftlichen Kanonforschung kennenlernen und uns dann der Selbstinszenierung im Kontext der vorromantischen, romantischen und modernen Genieästhetik zuwenden, Einiges über die Funktion von Literaturhäusern, Literaturkritiken und Literatursendungen erfahren, uns über den Ablauf von Dichterlesungen und Literaturwettbewerben informieren und uns schließlich gemeinsam Gedanken über die Funktion von literarischen Skandalen machen.

Zur Seminarorganisation: Die Studierenden erarbeiten in Gruppenarbeit jeweils viermal pro Semester kurze Stellungnahmen zu den einzelnen Themen, die dann in den wöchentlichen Online-Sitzungen besprochen werden sollen. Der Seminarplan wird in der ersten Sitzung vorgestellt. Eigene Vorschläge zur Gruppenzusammensetzung und eigene Themenvorschläge sind ausdrücklich willkommen (bitte Mail an die Dozentin!).

Kommentar Die großen Weltausstellungen des 19. und frühen 20. Jahrhunderts wurden von den Autoren ihrer Zeit lebhaft diskutiert. Zeigten sich einige von ihnen vom medial inszenierten Fortschritt zutiefest beeindruckt, so wurde dieses Spektakel nationaler Selbstdarstellung von anderen als der Untergang der Zivilisation wahrgenommen. Im Seminar werden Texte behandelt, die sich auf die Ausstellungen von 1851 (London), 1889 (Paris), 1893 (Chicago) und 1900 (Paris) beziehen. Wir werden u.a. Essays, Manifeste und autobiographische Texte von Charles Baudelaire, Émile Zola, Victor Hugo, Fjodor Dostojewskij und Walter Benjamin lesen und uns dann mit Hans Christian Andersens Erzählung Die Dryade. Ein Märchen von der Pariser Weltausstellung 1867 (1868) und mit Auszügen aus Thomas Pynchons Roman Against the Day (2006) und Erik Larsons Roman The Devil in the White City (2003) befassen. Ferner werden wir uns auch Texten zuwenden, in denen die Weltausstellungen weniger explizit thematisiert werden, wie in Lyman Frank Baums The Wonderful Wizard of Oz (1900). Im Seminar wird das Verhältnis zwischen Literatur und Technik reflektiert, zudem werden wir uns mit Fragestellungen der Postcolonial Studies auseinandersetzen. Voraussetzung zur Teilnahme am Seminar ist ein Interesse für Themen, die am Schnittpunkt von Literatur und Kulturwissenschaft angesiedelt sind.

Kommentar

August Strindberg

Der "erste Geist Europas" und ein "gewaltig schamloser Bekenner" sei August Strindberg gewesen, urteilte Thomas Mann in seinem Nachruf auf den 1912 verstorbenen Schweden; für Max Reinhardt, der wesentlich zur Verbreitung von Strindbergs Dramatik auf den deutschen Bühnen beitrug, war Strindberg sogar eine "eine wahrhaft faustische Natur [...], wie von einem bösen Geist durch alle Höhen und Tiefen des Lebens geschleppt". 'Geistereien' also im mindestens zweifachen Sinn... Da fügt es sich gut, dass von Strindbergs 60 Theaterstücken eines der bedeutendsten den Titel Spöksonaten ("Gespenster-sonate") trägt.

Im deutschen Sprachraum lange Zeit in erster Linie als Dramatiker - und, bis zu einem gewissen Grad, als Antipode des Norwegers Henrik Ibsen - bekannt, wird Strindberg in Schweden gleichermaßen als Erzähler, Essayist, polemischer Satiriker und manischer Tagebuch- und Briefeschreiber estimiert. Die überlieferte Verfasserschaft sowohl an vollendeten Werken wie an Entwürfen und Notizen ist gewaltig, ja "[k]aum zu überblicken", wie Heinrich Detering in einem Beitrag für die FAZ (2.11.1999) potentiellen Strindberg-Lesern und -Erkundern fast drohend verkündete. Dass Strindberg nicht nur schriftstellerisch in Erscheinung trat, sondern sich auch als Maler, Fotograf und Chemiker (und/oder Alchimist) betätigte, macht die Angelegenheit nicht eben übersichtlicher.

Trotz oder gerade wegen dieser scheinbar düsteren Aussichten wird die Vorlesung den kühnen Versuch wagen, in das riesenhafte Werk August Strindbergs einzuleiten und die wesentlichen Linien seines literarischen Schaffens zu skizzieren. Einen gewissen Schwerpunkt werden dabei neben den Dramen und autobiographischen Schriften vor allem Strindbergs Erzählungen und Romane bilden. Auch die erwähnte bildkünstlerische Produktion und Strindbergs Beziehungen zu den Naturwissenschaften soll zumindest gestreift werden. Obschon Strindberg in den skandinavistischen Lektürekanon vorrangig als Repräsentant des sog. Modernen Durchbruchs eingegangen ist, wird Strindbergs Stellung zur (und innerhalb der) Moderne umsichtig zu beleuchten sein; den lang verkündeten "Tod des Autors" geflissentlich übersehend, wird auch die von H. Detering betonte "Auslöschung der Trennlinie zwischen Leben und Schreiben" im 'Fall Strindberg' zur Debatte stehen.

Die deutsche Gesellschaft ist - wie auch etliche andere Gesellschaften - in vielerlei Hinsicht divers. Eine wesentliche Grundlage dessen sind Migrationsprozesse. Aber welche Bedeutung hat es eigentlich, dass über ein Viertel der Bevölkerung heute einen "Migrationshintergrund" haben?

Das Seminar hat drei Schwerpunkte: Einführend werden wir untersuchen, was und wer sich hinter der Kategorie "Migrationshintergrund" verbirgt. Es geht darum, die wichtigsten Migrationsprozesse und die Differenzierungen der migrantischen Bevölkerung kennenzulernen.

Zweitens beschäftigen wir uns damit, inwiefern es eigentlich wichtig ist, ob Menschen einen Migrationshintergrund haben. In welchem Maß und warum gibt es Prozesse der Inklusion oder Exklusion von Personen mit Einwanderungsgeschichte in Bildung und Arbeit? Welche Rolle spielen Religion, Säkularität und religiöse Differenz in der Migrationsgesellschaft, und wie wird kulturelle Differenz konstruiert? Welche Auswirkungen hat Rassismus?

Drittens behandelt das Seminar Möglichkeiten der Gestaltung von Diversität, z. B. durch Kommunen oder Regelungen religiöser Praxis.

Insgesamt kommen sowohl theoretische Aspekte als auch Beispiele empirischer Forschung im Seminar vor.

Prüfungsleistungen: Portfolio, d.h. zwei kurze Analysen (zum Grundlagentext bzw. im Rahmen einer praktischen Übung, je 2-3 Seiten, Abgabetermine immer spätestens 2 Wochen nach der jeweiligen Seminarsitzung) sowie eine längere Ausarbeitung zu einem Thema Ihrer Wahl im Rahmen des Seminarstoffs (14-15 Seiten, Abgabetermin 1. Sept. 2020).

Kommentar

The family has always sat at the heart of discourses negotiating American identity, concept(ions) of the home and belonging, and processes of inclusion or exclusion respectively. The nuclear family and alternatives to this concept - the latter often couched in terms of difference and deviation from the problematic notion of a standard or 'norm' - have been evoked to define and challenge American culture, placement in terms of class, and ideas revolving around race/ethnicity.

This class sets out to discuss the relevance of the family in and for recent American literature and culture (including film and TV). We will set out by tracing the (earlier) representations of the American family in literature and culture in order to gain an understanding of recent trends and developments as well as alternatives to conceptions of 'the American family' in contemporary texts.

How has the idea of today's American family been affected by discourses revolving around, for example, the middle class and the American Dream? How 'gendered' and 'ethnic' is the representation of the American family these days? How has 'family' affected the formation of (American) identity? And how exactly has this representation (re)considered and challenged values and mores, the above mentioned policies of inclusion and exclusion, etc.? How do different generations cope with each other and with societal changes - and how exactly are these processes enacted in narratives?

In order to trace these questions, we will investigate theoretical texts that engage with the socio-cultural formation and development of the American family, and then relate those discussions to selected writings (and potentially films and TV shows) in contemporary U.S.-American literature and culture.

A number of readings will come in the form of excerpts, single chapters, or articles; most texts will be made available in an e-reader via Stud.IP, but you are asked to purchase the three novels which we will discuss in full length: Jonathan Franzen's The Corrections (2001; Picador edition preferred), Celeste Ng's Everything I Never Told You (2014; Blackfriars edition preferred), and Jesmyn Ward's Sing, Unburied, Sing (2017; Bloomsbury edition preferred).

To ease their workload during the semester, students should consider reading the novels ahead of time.

Registration: Attendance for this class is limited to 20 students. Binding (!) registration on Stud.IP between 01 March and 31 March 2021 is required. All news concerning this class will be posted on Stud.IP as well. The class will start in the first week of the semester. For final registration, participants need to attend the first session of class.

Please note that this class will be taught online.

Independent Study: Please note that this class also has independent study components (as part of modules B.AS.401; B.AS.402; B.EP.51; M.EP.04b)
